DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT COMES UP AS NEW CONGRESS MEETS

Wets and Drys Coming Into Action for New Fight on Liquor
Missouri, Republican, Will Ask for an Outright Repeal for the Statute.

Washington.—Prohibition enforcement suddenly has taken its place among the outstanding public issues that are agitating Washington on the eve of the convening of Congress.

Aroused by the cumulative force of a long series of events, ranging from General Andrews' reverberating shriek of the prohibition, unit to a row over local enforcement methods in the National Capital, both wets and drys are again coming into action for another round of the old debate over liquor.

On top of an attack by the drys on the present prohibition regime, wet members of Congress yesterday renewed their attempt to force a change and one of them Representative Dry, Republican, Missouri, said he would introduce a bill for Congress for outright repeal of the Volstead act.

A large section of the drys are seeking to narrow down responsibility for the conditions of which they complain, but they are not agreed on the question of laying the blame directly on the present administration.

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, today disseminated the round robin of complaint sent the President yesterday by a score of reform organizations.

A. Boole, newly elected president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said that the White House would give him wholehearted support in his enforcement efforts.

Tonight at a public dinner here, Representatives of the Union and of the Anti-Saloon League, and Chicago convention recently there, urged the national prohibition enforcement officials, will restate their attitude for the benefit of official Washington. Several members of Congress are expected to attend.

The brickbats that have sailed long enforcement headquarters here, we can say, within the last 24 hours include a complaint by Representative Gallivan, Democratic, Massachusetts, that prohibition agent spent $1,000 and used liquor employees to treat two hotel proprietors here and secure their arrest for prohibition violations.

LEE TO CHARLESTON

Rev. Robert G. Lee to Citadel Square Church.

Charleston, Dec. 4.—The Rev. Robert G. Lee, D. D., who has accepted the call to the Citadel Square Baptist, Charleston, since July when the Rev. C. C. Coleman resigned to go to Durham, N. C., will arrive here on Monday, December 11, with Mrs. Lee and their child, 11, will reside at Kentland avenue and will preach his first sermon at Citadel Square Church, December 13.

Dr. Lee, a native of South Carolina, has been pastor of the First Baptist church of New Orleans for the last four years and is prominently connected with the Southern Baptist convention. His decision to return to North Carolina has been generally remarked on with satisfaction by the papers of the state and he will be cordially welcomed by the members of his own congregation and in Charleston church circles.

Dr. Lee is a graduate of Furman university and during his student days was pastor of the Baptist churches at Princeton 22 Waterloo in Louisiana county.

Conditions Getting Worse

It is time for the people to sit up and take notice when the sheriff of the county has 42 tracts of land advertised for sale at one time in this county for delinquent taxes.

Last Saturday there were 42 different lots and parcels of land advertised for sale at the court house because the owners had not paid their taxes on them.

It shows that conditions are getting worse than they used to be, for here in the heart of the country can we remember when that much real estate was offered at one time under the tax law.

It is the fact that the tax law is not paid because the owners of the land could not raise the money. When expense of that sort comes more than the income can

LANCASTER NEWS

Items From The Lancaster News of More or Less Interest to Chester County People.

John A. McManus, county superintendent of education, has recovered from an attack of the flu and is able to be at his office again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Perrie, of South Lancaster, recently managers of Dearborn Inn, Great Falls, and later of Ozone Inn, Seneca, left this week for Columbia, where the former has accepted a position as night clerk at the Jefferson Hotel.

On Thursday November 26, at the residence of the officiating minister Rev. J. P. Denny, Miss Fawcett and Miss Salsar were united in marriage. The contracting parties are both of Lancaster county and reside in the Wright community. A host of friends congratulated the young couple.

Captain and Mrs. J. Foster Moore of Lancaster announced the arrival of a daughter one day last week. Mrs. Moore and child are in Columbia at the home of her mother, Mrs. Baucourt, where she accepted the call and expects to move about the middle of December.

Ben P. Jenkins, 49 years, died Monday morning at 5 o'clock at his home in the Taxahaw section of this county, pneumonia, and the body was buried in the Blackmont burying ground two miles south of Taxahaw Tuesday afternoon.

W. H. Martin has accepted the position of superintendent of the Williamson Mill Company, Charleston, S. C.

J. H. Moorefield, manager of the Western Electric Company, is enjoying a lengthy visit from his children, C. D. Moorefield of Columbia, S. C., and his wife, Mrs. C. D. Moorefield, who are in the city for nine years.

James C. Moorefield, who has been connected with western railroad, has been promoted to the position of general manager of the railroad, and has been in the city for several years.

James C. Moorefield, proprietor of the Dixie Cafe, died at his residence, the old Dunlap house on South Main street, Charleston, Wednesday night, after a painful illness of several days.

Mr. Moorefield was a native of Chester county, and was a member of the Episcopal church in the city. He was a man of high character and was highly respected by all who knew him.

Mr. Moorefield was married to Mrs. Moorefield, who was a native of the same county. They had several children, and was a devoted father and husband.

YORK NEWS

Items From The Yorkville Enquirer of More or Less Interest to Chester County People.

Commerce, Ga.—Harmony Grove Mills are having plans and specifications prepared for a new cloth room 70 by 44. In addition to this work a machinery reorganization is being carried out and this time. Contracts will be placed within the next week or ten days.

Newman, Ga.—Plans and specifications for the new developments in the burlary of the Wood Wholesale grocery at Clover; so last Thursday night. The day of goods stolen by the thieves is of a character that is hard to identify and the arrest of the burglars, should happen now, by the result of chance than anything else.

There have been no new developments in the burglary of the Wood Wholesale grocery at Clover; so last Thursday night. The day of goods stolen by the thieves is of a character that is hard to identify and the arrest of the burglars, should happen now, by the result of chance than anything else.

Each good work is being done on the sand-pile streets of Yorkville in making them more fit for travel. The connecting link between the street on East Liberty street and the hard surface road is being put in place.

The plant has been thoroughly overhauled, 25 new houses for machinery for the Spied-Holcomb Mill will be placed on December 11. The machinery is to be made by the Spied-Holcomb Mill in the mill in Birmingham.

Durham, N. C.—The first yard of cloth, woven from artificial silk, was made by the Spied-Holcomb Mill in the mill in Birmingham.

DOCTOR CLINKSCALES TALKS OF COMPULSORY EDUCATION

Dr. Clinkscales Has Some Striking Things to Say About Schools and Education

Dr. Clinkscales, professor of mathematics in Wofford College, who is the only man who ever ran for governor of South Carolina making a distance and emphatic campaign for better education, has some striking things to say.

"A compulsory law that compels every child to attend school is the very first importance," says Dr. Clinkscales. "The intelligent results of abolishing the attendance officers have been marked in many a way by Miss Will out in Gray that a man with a brain ought to be able to see them."

"Who is responsible for the reputation of this provision? I do not know, but this I know: there is no ignorant and unworthy of a seat in any legislative body, or else he was demagogue enough to carry his own reputation. God give us a plan for education. God give us the average voter anyway—he is the dupe many times of fools and demagogues."

AMERICANS BUY MUCH INSURANCE

More Policies Sold in 7 Weeks Than in Year While Back

New York, Dec. 8.—Americans now are buying as much life insurance in seven weeks as they bought in a year a quarter century ago, Chairman William A. Law, of Philadelphia, declared in opening the annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here today.

As an index to the conditions of the country, he called attention to $15,400,000,000 of new insurance paid for this year—a new record. This represents a gain of $2,000,000,000 over the previous high mark of 1924.

"American business expansion of the past quarter-century is amazing, and becomes more so as we project the picture backward to the beginning of this century," he said. "With our modern financial, commercial and manufacturing machinery, data we use definite figures in attempting predictions for the next quarter century. 'The vast growth' of our urban population accompanying our commercial expansion, the organization of business on a large scale, the urgent demand for higher and higher living standards, and the rapidity of communication, all tend to emphasize the interdependence of our population, the extent of our future problems, and the need of broad-minded cooperation in their solution."

Robert W. Huntington of Hartford, Conn., told the members that life insurance companies this year are making a further loan of $1,000,000,000 to American people.

"This additional loan has been used to finance homes and farms, industry, transportation and commerce, and makes an investment record for life insurance companies," he said. "Never before has the net increase in life insurance investments in a single year reached $1,000,000,000. The total invested assets of the United States life insurance companies will amount to $11,500,000,000 by the end of the current year."

COMPLETES 41-DAY FAST

Lay Scientist at University of Chicago Affords New Data

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Frederick Hoelzel, lay scientist working at the University of Chicago, announced today that he had completed a forty-one day fast. This record has never been approached by a scientist and it has been equaled by few hunger strikers.

Hoelzel's physical condition at the end of what was considered a phenomenal experience was considered good. He lost thirty to forty pounds.

During his period of abstinence from food Hoelzel was tested by the physiology department, thus enabling the university psychologists to determine the effect of prolonged hunger on the mental process. They discovered that mental ability and alertness are retarded during a long fast and suddenly increased, often above normal, when eating is resumed. Experiments were also conducted with Hoelzel as the subject to find out exactly what happens to the digestive organs and the human system in general when the body is deprived of food for a length of time. The observations now being tabulated in the physiology department are not yet ready for publication.

SLEEP AND HEALTH.

One contribution all parents can make toward the education of their children with out sacrifice or expense is to see to it that they get regular and adequate hours of sleep.

Physicians and neurologists agree that dullness among school children is very often sleepiness or under-development, because of insufficient hours of sleep. The physical file which follows too little rest in the adolescent period. Every mother knows that a sleepless baby is a sick baby.

A trend toward nervousness among school children is attributed to irregular and insufficient hours of sleep. Accurate information would probably disclose that the men and women as well as the children of this community average eight or more hours of sleep nightly and it cannot be charged that our school children are dull or under-developed. Every adult knows the value of sleep and the amount he or she, individually, requires for health and maximum mental and physical efficiency. Children can not be expected to ascertain this for themselves, so it is incumbent upon their parents to learn what is required and provide for it.

More than 95 per cent of land and 91 per cent of factories have been restored in the French devastated regions.

It is said that many peasants of Czechoslovakian Ruthenia were converted to Communism on the promise of the party of free cultivation of tobacco.

Spelling It and Speaking It

By Wickes Wamboldt

Pittsburghers are fond of the name Daquette. They use it adjectivally to designate a good many institutions. But if you go there, don't pronounce it as it is spelled for the Pittsburghers will have your number.

The name Daquette the first syllable "Da"—the kind of do you do when you're something. And they roll the rest of the word into walking cane or sugar cane. "De-cane"—accent on the "cane."

And you can't always tell by the dictionary. Before we went into the Couderd-Gilles country, in Idaho, we studied up and were all primed to call it "Cur." The thing had little "hey" in its name. "da"—the noise Snookums makes when he tries to say papa—"lane," the kind of things livers walk down with their baby ones. "Cur-da-lane"—accent on the "lane." And the first, native to whom we called it that, said indignantly, "You mean Core-dalane, don't you?"

If you are ever in California and refer to San Jose, don't pronounce it that way, or the folks will know you don't know. San Jose has three syllables. San—like the first part of San Jose. Jose—like the first part of San Jose. The Man With the Hoe, and the slanted brow—but any kind of hoe will do. "sai"—as when you have something to say—the way the present-day child accosts its elders. San-Joe-say, with the accent on the say.

Vallejo is another California name you want to be careful about. Pronounce the first syllable like the first part of Vallejo—and the second syllable like what you want a hen to do if you like eggs—day—and the third syllable like the second syllable in San Jose—Joe—Va-lay-hoe—with the accent on the lay—where the hen lays it.

If you are speaking of Spokane, and don't want the wise ones to know you're not wise, don't pronounce the first syllable like Spokane—just like Spokane can.

And the State of Wyoming doesn't pronounce the name of her chief city like a kind of popper. Whenever you vocalize Cheyenne make two bites of the cherry. The first is "Shy"—just everyday shy. The second is "Chey"—like the other bite is "en"—just like an Englishman would say hen—drop the hatch. Shy-en—accent on the en.

Polynesian names would be easy to get if the native pronunciation were adhered to—we in America are in a bit of a fix. The "e" in feet—like the "e" in no—and u as in rug. And no accent anywhere. But so-called folks have corrupted Hawaii (pronunciation add other-wise) and have disfigured two of its vowels—and so we call it Ha—just like the ha in ha ha—like who with the h left out—and ee—just like sel, except there is an "e" of difference. Ha-yy—like the accent on the ha.

Perhaps you have noticed that up in Michigan there is a city by the name of Sault Ste. Marie. But it's not pronounced that way. Sue—the girl kind of Sue—blue eyed, golden-haired Sue—saint—just like Saint John or Saint Peter—or an old or saint—Mary—just like "Mary, Mary, quite contrary"—Sue-Saint Mary. It takes some imagination, doesn't it, to get that out of Sault Ste. Marie?

Our idea of an optimist is a man who believes that words are always pronounced exactly as they are spelled.

"Play Fair."

In every person's character there is a strain of jealousy and its influence depends in large measure upon the efforts made to keep it in check. If we begin early to take hold of it and appreciate the had effects of its inroads upon our peace of mind the chances are that we will do our utmost to overcome it before it overcomes us. Many persons have been able to stand up and almost entirely free of others have succeeded at least in reducing its influence, while others yet do not bother themselves about it and are only conscious of its presence when it makes itself felt in an ugly and disconcerting manner. Yet there are many persons who while priding themselves on the fact that they have no jealousy whatever in their natures show unmistakable signs of it in certain conditions. There are so many forms of jealousy, however, that it would almost be a miracle if anyone could escape its degradations, and it is just in proportion to our ability to check it or ignore it, that we are affected by it.

One of the most common, and at the same time, one of the most insidious forms of this vice is the inclination to depreciate the achievements of others. There does not seem any reason why anyone should care to indulge in such a petty form of jealousy, yet the evidence shows that it is a form that is widely indulged in and perhaps if we searched for the truth in our own hearts we would acknowledge that we, too, have yielded more than once to the temptation to make light of the ability and good results attained by those about us. Of course it is only natural to want to have the best for ourselves; that is a trait that distinguishes most persons, as we must all admit. Perhaps it is a way, a form of the doctrine of "the survival of the fittest," because each person is more concerned in his individual success than in the success of others. If this desire is safeguarded however, it does no harm and, on the contrary, may stimulate us to better and better efforts. If however, we are not watchful the desire, or ambition, or whatever else we may choose to call it is likely to grow out of bounds and before we realize the fact we begin to work for our own ends regardless of the rights of others. This we do in various ways, one of the most ordinary being the indirect method of belittling the accomplishments of those about us largely in order to magnify our own.

Surely we have come to a sorry pass when we cannot summon the generosity to praise the results achieved by others even though we, too, may have tried to produce the same results without success. It may be that we were not as well fitted for the task as they were, or that the opportunity we thought was ours belonged after all to them. What does it matter really how much others succeed if we keep on steadily with our own efforts, seeking not the glory of great achievement but merely the knowledge of duty well done and competence at ease? Why not be generous and open-minded in our judgments, and even though they are attacked by jealousy, that most insidious of foes, accord full measure of praise and sympathetic appreciation of results which we have seen come to pass before our eyes? It is so much easier to "nitch," a friend, remarked the other day, than "to be nice," and yet how few of us appear to agree with her. Sometimes we seem even to be out of our way to be unpleasant to others, hoping perhaps to "get back" at them for some imagined hurt; and all we accomplish is to wound unnecessarily a heart in its first joyous realization of success, and to leave behind us unpleasant impressions that no future efforts of ours can wholly eradicate.

The man who succeeds through honest efforts welcomes a word of praise. His heart has been yearning for some recognition from those about him although not for worlds would he admit the fact. Yet the sensation of being "appreciated" if only for a short while means more to him in the early stages of his career than it ever does again. How unpleasant an experience it is, then, when, instead of generous appreciation and encouragement, he meets indifferent interest and even unkind insinuations and depressive comments. It may be that we, too, will one day need just the kind of encouragement that we have withheld from others, but it will be too late then for us to make good the injury we have worked. Life sometimes has a way of paying us back in kind, and one way by which to avoid such a development is that we should not feel that we are about the jealous feelings that prompt us not to play fair with others.—Sunday News.

Pueblo Bonito women of ancient New Mexico rouged their cheeks with brick-red rouge, dug from the thin lenses of compact clay underneath the sandstone cliffs.

What is the Year Bringing?

As we near the end of another year of varied activities which may have meant either fulfillment or disappointment it is well to review conditions as we have known them and to satisfy our minds as to whether we have made the most of the opportunities that were ours, or whether we merely played with them, procrastinating from day to day the vital duty of settling down to our particular jobs. Much has happened during the past eleven months, much may still happen in the single month left us of the present year, and if we turn on the light for a brief while and scrutinize our actions and our hopes for the future it may be that we shall be in better position to understand all that has happened and something of what may yet come to pass.

In the first place, it is almost hopeless to expect that we have retained confidence in our ability to continue to apply ourselves as wholeheartedly as we did under the spur of the new resolutions we made at the beginning of the year. We are only human and are able to go far and no farther, yet if we have not had the capacity for sticking to our resolutions and carrying them out fearlessly we at least have had the chance to try to do so. Perhaps we "carried on" for a while, doing our best and keeping the fires of our self-confidence burning brightly, but as time went on we lost by degrees something of the disposition to adhere strictly to our resolutions, and little by little we resumed the process of tangling up our affairs which we had interrupted so easily a short time back. As a matter of fact, there are few persons who have not fallen very far short of the high standard they set for themselves, and few persons who have not taken this result as something to be expected. Yet, even if we have not been able to do all that we so confidently expected to do there is no excuse now for not getting to work to repair the damage as far as is possible. If we persist in clinging to the old ways of indifference and neglect and incompetency we shall merely clutter up our lives more than ever and, consequently, steep ourselves in confusion and perhaps in absolute failure.

Sometimes if we begin to think over matters it seems as though we have bungled our work so much and confused our issues so terribly that there seems to be no way out of the tangle. We are only able to form the vaguest conception of what we have done and what we want to do. We know that for some reason we have not produced the results we anticipated and, therefore, we declare ourselves failures. Yet instead of taking the pains to try to reduce the reasons for these failures, we simply ignore their presence and the urgent necessity for their removal by attempting to go about as though we had indeed accomplished something worthwhile. There are some people who are known as "slate-cleaners." They do not possess any very great appeal for the average man but they do work that is very necessary and without which the world soon becomes a hopeless muddle. It may be that few of us have the ambition to be of their number, but unless we remove the cluttering up of our lives their results we too shall soon be beyond help. It is a strange thought, perhaps it is ever more so when we consider the quality of good genes, that we seem to prefer to be "clutterers" than "slate-cleaners." Why do we not know the reason for working in this individual's mind (and is merely accepted as a matter of fact. Life is so filled with "clutterers," a rule, that their presence is almost taken for granted. They block their own path and make the going for others much harder than it would otherwise be. But more than that, they block the paths of others and cause hardships that are wholly unnecessary. Why should we feel that we have the right to throw away our unfulfilled jobs, our neglected opportunities, our indifferent efforts, and the shame of inefficiencies because it does not suit us to do our part by them? Why should we be willing for others to be blocked by them just as we are blocked or to put themselves to the unjust and unnecessary trouble of working them out of the way? It is much easier to be a "clutterer" than a "slate-cleaner," and it is for this reason, probably, that the majority of persons fail to keep their resolutions and perform the work they undertake when faith in themselves and the courage to "carry on" run high. It is not pleasant to accept the responsibility for our failures, but it is easy to clear away their remains, but the duty we owe to ourselves and others as well demands it by all the rules of good sportsmanship.—Sunday News.

Stops carbon knocks

It gives us great pleasure to announce NO-NOX our new Motor Fuel. NO-NOX is the product of many months of exhaustive scientific and chemical research by a staff of our own skilled chemists, infinite care being given to all details to insure the absolute perfection of NO-NOX Motor Fuel. Struggle nights and days were spent in our thoroughly equipped laboratories by these scientists before NO-NOX Motor Fuel was perfected. Hard grilling road tests followed to develop any weakness overlooked in the laboratory, and we are now ready to offer the most efficient anti-knock fuel in the world.

Manufactured in one refinery under the same skillful supervision and from the same grades of crude, it is continuously uniform which means much in combustion. When the carburetor is once properly adjusted it requires no further change—care should be taken to see that the mixture is not too rich as NO-NOX works best with a thin mixture, thus insuring economy. With NO-NOX, perfect combustion takes place at just the right position of the piston head which entirely does away with carbon knocks or motor detonation—promoting greater efficiency of the engine, smoother operation of the car on the road, in traffic, and especially on heavy grades.

This wonderfully efficient gas is guaranteed to be Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline.

NO-NOX is priced only three cents per gallon higher than That Good Gulf Gasoline.

Drive to the nearest Gulf Service Station and try it out. It is readily distinguished by its color.

Money For Roads, but No System

In five months the new Kansas "bond" tax has brought more than $2,000,000 into the treasury of that State. But although Kansas has many millions of dollars for highway purposes, from this and other sources, it has no legislation under which it may hope to obtain a State highway system, which in this day of the motor vehicle is second in importance only to a railroad system.

In the matter of good roads Kansas, in all the United States, "stands in a class by itself"—a class in which no other State wants to stand. The Kansas City Star says that Kansas is not even planning for a road system, let alone building a system of roads, yet it stands to spend $5,000,000 a year for which it will receive nothing more than it has received in the past in good roads, which is the least of all the States of the Union. It is explained that the hands of the State are tied by a constitutional provision, which forbids it to take control of its own road building. Unless a constitutional amendment is submitted in 1928 nothing can be done before 1929 and the Kansas City Star says it does not require a prophet to tell what position Kansas will occupy in the eyes of the world with a road program delayed until 1929. Governor Platten is said to be ready to call a special session of the Legislature, but there seems to be doubt whether the Legislature would submit to the proposed highway amendment, which is being demanded by business organizations and civic bodies throughout the State.

Kansas will suffer immeasurably if it lets its big road revenue go to spend through local agencies and is not used to obtain a complete and unified system of State highways. It should not be necessary to say that Kansas will never obtain a complete and unified system

The attention of all ex-service men is called to the annual banquet which will be held in the Sunday school building of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church in Chester, on next Thursday evening, December 10th, at seven-thirty o'clock. Senator E. D. Smith and State Commanders Galbraith are both scheduled to be present and will have an interesting message for those who attend. Ex-service men who wish to attend are asked to notify Mr. F. L. Hardin, at the Hardin-Rice Drug Company, so that plates may be arranged. Mr. Hardin should be notified not later than Tuesday evening, December 8th. The supper is free to all ex-service men.

A number of Chester county people will be interested to know that the Roddey-Poe Mercantile company of Rock Hill, has decided to discontinue business since the death of its president and general manager, Mr. C. P. Roddey, which occurred about ten days ago. The Roddey-Poe Mercantile company is an old established firm having been established in 1865, when Mr. W. L. Roddey and Mr. Joseph Wylie of Chester, organized two mercantile establishments, Mr. Wylie managing the store in Chester and Mr. Roddey the store in Rock Hill. After a few years of successful business Mr. Roddey bought Mr. Wylie's share in the store in Rock Hill and after running it himself a few years, organized the W. L. Roddey Company. In 1894 the store was re-organized as the Roddey Mercantile Company and in 1910 the firm was re-organized again when the Roddey-Poe Mercantile Company was established.

A new motor fuel to come on the Chester market is that of "No-Nox," which has been placed on sale by the Gulf Refining Company at the Pryor Service Station and Auto Inn. A large advertisement appearing in this issue of The News, by The Gulf Refining Company, tells of this new motor fuel and what it will do. Mr. J. R. Hamrick, agent for Gulf Refining Products in Chester, has already tried this new motor fuel in his automobiles and has found that it greatly increases the power of the car and does away with the knocks of the motor. The new motor fuel has been placed on the market in a number of nearby towns and it is said that many who have tried it will have no other when possible to secure it. Read the advertisement appearing in this issue.

The Chester High school girls' basketball team will play the Great Falls team at the Chester High school tomorrow afternoon at three-thirty o'clock. The Chester team is the same as the same as that which played Winthrop Training school and a fine game is anticipated. The admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

The government cotton ginning report came in this morning giving cotton ginned to December first as 13,857,636 bales, which was higher than the majority of private reports. The crop is now being estimated at 15,603,000 bales. At the time The News went to press the cotton market had declined about thirty points this morning.

Misses Margaret Proctor and Jen Paye delightfully entertained a number of their friends at a "Treasure Hunt" on Friday evening. After going to quite a number of places, the prize was a treasure it was at last found at the home of Miss Jen Paye. Here they were invited to rest and enjoyed many good things until a late hour, then being served with delightful refreshments.

Contractors yesterday morning started real work on the bridge which is to be erected over Catawba river between Lancaster and Chester counties at the Lancaster and Chester Railway ferry site.

Attention is again called to the meeting which will be held at Bethel Methodist church this evening at seven-thirty o'clock, at the home of W. S. Rankin, of Raleigh, N. C., will talk to the people of Chester about the Duke hospitalization fund. Dr. Rankin has made a wide study of this subject and will give Chester people much valuable information and it is hoped that Chester will take advantage of any available fund for the establishment of charity beds for any in this section who may be unable financially to pay hospital bills. It is especially desirable that a representative number of Chester people be present this evening at the meeting, thereby showing Dr. Rankin that we are really interested in the Duke fund.

The following is from The New York Times of Sunday: "The State Hospital Commission and Board of Managers of the Manhatta State Hospital will hold services in memory of Dr. Marcus B. Heyman, late Superintendent of the Manhatta State Hospital on Ward's Island at 2:30 P. M. next Tuesday at the hospital."

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1925

It's a kind fate that makes so many nurses good looking.
Men who strut should contemplate the fate of the turkey gobbler.
Window smashers should remember that they live in glass houses.
It's no advantage to think twice before acting if you never act.
If you lay down on a job, it is very apt to wiggle out from you.
Silence is a wonderful trait, especially when one has nothing to say.
The public is sometimes misled by corporations with watered stock.
It's a fair question, did anyone ever see a traffic cop get teased?

TEACHING BY EXAMPLE
A mother was advising her son against loitering in pool rooms. He reasoned with carefully chosen words that it was against the law for minors to frequent such places.
The son rebelled, saying that he violated the law every day, and countered by pointing out that good men did not, and she agreed to one of the children of the community whom she thought about reaching.
The mother received an answer that put an end to her argument. He said the boy with an air of triumph riding with the man she mentioned and that he had driven an automobile fifty-five miles an hour.
And that's against the law, I say, said the boy with an air of triumph, the argument.
The mother retired in disorder, deeply outpointed in the controversy, because she could not defeat the youthful logic. Every state penalizes the speed of automobiles, and driving beyond the limit is an infraction of the law. The men do every day the thing that provided this boy with reason to which he tied his argument and excused his own violation of the law.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

WHEN
When a man can take a drink and not scorn those who think in toxicants an evil, or deny himself and not scorn those who drink.
When a man can drive a car and not berate those who cross the street, or walk and not berate those who drive cars.
When a man can live in a city and not scorn country folk, or live in a village and not feel more righteous than city men.
When a man can dot on religion and not condemn those who do not share his zeal, or be indifferent to religion and not sneer at the devout.
When a man can eat what he likes and not yell "crank" at those who diet, or live on spinach and not feel virtuously superior to heavy eaters.
When a man can enjoy music and not scorn those who do not understand it, or care nothing for music and not think music lovers pretenders.
When a man can enjoy sex drama and not scorn those who denounce it, or avoid it and not denounce those who give it support.
When a man can favor war and not scorn pacifists, or be a lover of peace without hurling epithets at those who think war advisable.
When a man can believe in evolution without scorning those who cling to Genesis, or think the world made in seven days, and yet not hate the evolutionists.
When a man can be poor and not envy the rich, or be rich and not feel superior to the poor.
When a man can work and not resent the existence of idlers, or loaf and not speak patronizingly of the working class.
When a man can fail and not hate those who succeed, or succeed and not scorn those who fail.
When a man can be with the majority and denounce the use of power, or be with the minority and not complain of "mob rule".
When a man of good birth can believe that all men are equal or of music and not think music lovers pretenders.

When a man can enjoy sex drama and not scorn those who denounce it, or avoid it and not denounce those who give it support.
When a man can favor war and not scorn pacifists, or be a lover of peace without hurling epithets at those who think war advisable.
When a man can believe in evolution without scorning those who cling to Genesis, or think the world made in seven days, and yet not hate the evolutionists.
When a man can be poor and not envy the rich, or be rich and not feel superior to the poor.
When a man can work and not resent the existence of idlers, or loaf and not speak patronizingly of the working class.
When a man can fail and not hate those who succeed, or succeed and not scorn those who fail.
When a man can be with the majority and denounce the use of power, or be with the minority and not complain of "mob rule".
When a man of good birth can believe that all men are equal or a man of lowly birth concede that some are superior because of the blood that is in them?

Then at last the millennium will be here, but never until then.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owners of property abutting on paved streets, the Street Improvement Assessment on which has not been fully paid, are hereby notified that the fifth annual installment, together with interest on the unpaid balance for one year, will be due on December 15th, 1925.
It is imperative that the said installment and interest be paid during the month of December, 1925, as paving Certificates and interest coupons will fall due on January 1st, 1926, and the City must have funds to meet them. The City Council has ordered executions to be issued against any delinquent on January 1st, 1926 and the abutting property advertised for sale to cover the installment, interest, and costs.

Individual notices have been mailed to abutting property owners of record on the City Assessment book, showing the amount of their installment and interest; but these notices are an accommodation only, and failure to receive same will not constitute failure to pay before January 1st, 1926.
Special attention to this notice should be given by any who have bought property on improved streets during the past year, as no record of transfers is kept in this office, and the notice may have been mailed to former owner.
J. H. McLUKE,
City Clerk & Treasurer,
Chester, S. C. December 8th, 1925.

TAX NOTICE.

In accordance with law, books are now open for the collection of city taxes at the office of the City Treasurer in the City Hall, and will remain open until the 11th day of December, 1925, next, without penalty.
On January 1st, 1926 one (1) per cent penalty will be added; on February 1st, 1926 an additional one (1) per cent penalty will be imposed; on March 1st, 1926, five (5) per cent more penalty will be added, making seven (7) per cent extra for taxes paid during the first fifteen days of March. On March 16th, 1926 executions will be issued against all delinquents for amount of taxes, with penalty and cost of service.
The following tax levy has been duly made: To pay interest on the city's bonded and floating indebtedness and to provide sinking fund eight (8) mills; for current general expenses and ordinary purposes twelve (12) mills.

J. H. McLUKE,
City Clerk & Treasurer,
Chester, S. C., Nov. 2, 1925.

THE SOUTHERN SERVES THE SOUTH

What every business man knows

Every business man knows the danger of using too much borrowed capital in financing the growth of a business.
But the promise of the ultimate success of an undertaking often justifies the accumulation of debt against the day when established earning power will attract new partnership capital.
Such has been the record of the Southern Railway Company. For thirty years it has been compelled to finance itself by borrowing and the reinvestment of earnings.
But the Southern should now take its rightful place among the enterprises of the South whose solid worth merits the confidence of investors and attracts partners rather than creditors.

IS YOUR LAST BABY MORTGAGED?

It is a pity to come into this world with a mortgage around your neck.
Your doctor was there—perhaps at two in the morning, when the world was asleep—to receive your baby from Dr. Stork. He gave it scientific care that it needed to get a right start. He eased the mother.
Without sleep, without praise, without hope of reward other than a few dollars, he came when called—promptly—and did his work well.
And now the baby is how many months old? And the proud father and mother—you and your wife—have you been on time as were the doctor and Mr. Stork?
Did you pay your doctor at once? Did you settle with him promptly—give him the only reward he asks, the few dollars he charged for a life time of experience?
Or is your baby mortgaged? Is your doctor still mailing you bills which you throw in the waste basket?
Remember he knows that you are paying other bills. He has ways of discovering that you promptly pay your electric, telephone and butcher's bills.
He knows, too, that if you cannot pay him all, you could send part—and play square with him, as he played square with you when you needed him quickly.
You are not a liar. You would not ask anyone to render you a service on the pretense that you were honest and meant to pay what you owed.
But if you ignore him much longer, what will he be forced to think? He can only believe that you are willing to dandle a mortgage baby on your knee, while you earn the reputation of being a "dead beat".
Make some move today. Pay him all or part of your bill.

Every Doctor in town—including yours—
Will Read this Message. Will they remember the lein on the life of your living babe?
